SPORTSCASTER OF RADIO STATION W W O D

I guess there's one thing that we never really get enough of and that's the Great Outdoors. Because people and personalities differ, their approach to nature worship differs but the intention you are a golfer, a hunter, a fisherman or a watermelon eater, or just a plain hiker, it is all the same in the end.

Around the rapidly rising state conservation fad is making outdoor life a matter of more enjoyment for all. Even the Virginia Commission of Game and Inland Fisheries, located in Richmond, Va., is far from being just another department to supervise pertinent to conservation. Its super-intendent, Ira Gabrielson, is super-vising game birds in the state, fish, fur, and song birds. They take a tremendous interest in preserving the natural haunts for both game and fish in our state and do everything possible to maintain the aesthetic appreciation of our forests.

I am admittedly no hunter or fisherman but I can still appreciate the excellent work being done by this state commission. In their monthly magazine, "Virginia Wildlife," all phases of the state's efforts to preserve its natural beauty are fully discussed over a period of a year and the periodical is loaded with practical advice on how to, or, by our great reservoir of natural resources. As a case in point, I offer for the remainder of this column, a short article from the February, 1952 "Virginia Wildlife" entitled, "The White Crappie."

"The White Crappie, known to some people as silver perch, and to others as the speckled, is not quite so well known as the black crappie and wide distribution as it is sunfish cousin, but enough but to claim to fame as the sunfishes as a table delicacy.

"The White Crappie was originally widely distributed from Nebraska eastward to Lake Ontario and southward through the Ohio and Mississippi rivers to Texas and Alabama northward along the coastal plain to North Carolina and Virginia.

"The crappies predominating colors are bright silver with black mottlings, but the intensity of the covering varies greatly. The white crappie ran from five to seven dorsal spines—usually six—and the black crappie, or calico bass, as it is often called, has from six to ten spines—usually seven or eight. The outline of the back of the white crappie is more of an S-shaped curve than that of the black crappie.

"This fish is found principally in our lakes, ponds, and slow moving, sluggish waters, impounded waters being best suited to its requirements. They are not adapted to fast moving, cooler waters of the mountain.

"The species spawns in the spring and early summer, while the male is doing the one to clear off the nest and guard it.

"It is carnivorous fish that breeds on insects, worms, crayfish, and fish. It has been known to reach a length of 18 inches and a weight of 2 1/2 pounds. A specimen was caught that weighed four pounds.

"This species is an important fish in the midwest and in the south, taking a hook well, especially when minnows are used as bait. Fishermen should, however, be cautious when pulling their catch from the water as tender and, without a firm pull off the hook.

"The Commission's stocks around 50,000 the waters of Virginia among which are bass, pike and some kinds of these are stocked in ponds, lakes moving streams. While thrive, breed and the lake one of the great white crappie is also when other fish do remarkable ability to duce, and are stocked in waters many a fish the empty of fish."

Ford TRACTOR

AN IMPORTANT MESSAGE

To Our Customers and Friends

We are happy to be able to tell you that the lawsuit brought more than four years ago against Ford Motor Company and Dearborn Motors Corporation by Harry Ferguson and Harry Ferguson, Inc. has been settled by agreement of the parties.

There are three points connected with this settlement which, as a present or possible future owner of a Ford Tractor, we want to make clear to you. Regardless of what you may hear to the contrary, these are the FACTS.

3 Points Of Interest

To Our Present and Future Customers

1 Ford Motor Company will continue production of the present Ford Tractor without interruption and Dearborn Motors Corporation will continue to market them internationally as in the past. By the end of 1952, Ford Motor Company has agreed to make two simple changes, and only two changes, in the means of operation and control of a pump and in the hydraulic system in the Ford Tractor. After these simple changes have been made, there is nothing in the settlement of the suit to prevent Ford Motor Company from continuing the manufacture of the present Ford Tractor for as long as it may choose.

A STATEMENT

By Mr. Henry Ford II

"In normal times Ford Motor Company would carry such a suit to a final conclusion in the courts. These are not normal times. Under the circumstances we were glad to get rid of the litigation to avoid the expense, harassment, and further interference with our tractor business involved in additional years in the courts.

"The settlement in no way interferes with Ford Motor Company's continuing to offer to the farmer the lowest priced tractor with hydraulic control and the present method of attaching and operating implements."

2 Ford Motor Company will continue to produce and Dearborn Motors Corporation, and ourselves as dealers, will continue to supply all repair parts for all past present and future Ford Tractors.

3 Ford Tractors will continue to offer all the advantages of the present system of hydraulic control, the present method of attaching and operating implements, and all other features responsible for their wide popularity. Dearborn Motors will continue to offer its same complete line of implements.

It is a source of deep satisfaction to us to be in a position to debunk conclusively and finally in this way the assertions that have been made and the propaganda that has been spread over the past four years.
